DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 60 and 61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The specification discloses two separate embodiments related to measurements from a subject's eye (Figures 9A, 9B) and from a subject's skin (Figure 13). Nowhere is there a disclosure of a combined measurement through both an eye and skin, as set forth in the claims. As such, the disclosure does not enable one skilled in the art to perform the claimed method.

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claims 60 and 61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. It is unclear how the conditions of the final three lines of claim 59 can be met while simultaneously meeting the claim 60 limitations regarding measurement through a subject's skin. As noted in paragraph 2 above, measurement through the eye and skin are disclosed as separate embodiments.

Double Patenting

5. A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

6. Claims 44 - 59 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1 - 9, 14, 18 - 20, 25, 26, 28, and 33 of prior U.S. Patent No. 6,246,893. This is a double patenting rejection.

It is noted that the claims of the patent use the medical term "iris" to identify an element of the eye by its structure, while the claims of the instant application use the phrase "reflective interior surface" to identify an element of the eye based on a functional aspect of the element. However, if one were to identify all of the physical structures of the eye that could perform the function, one would necessarily conclude that only the iris of the eye could be such a structure. In support of this assertion, Applicant's attention is drawn to the cited sections of Optics (Hecht) and Physiology (Berne and Levy) that describe the anatomy of the eye. The structure of the eye is such that the anterior chamber is surrounded by two refractive elements (cornea and crystalline lens) and one reflective element (iris). As such, the term "iris" and the phrase "reflective interior surface" are indistinguishable in that they necessarily refer to the same physical structure. As a result, the claims of the patent and application cover an identical scope.

7. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

8. Claims 44 - 59 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1 - 9, 14, 18 - 20, 25, 26, 28, and 33 of U.S. Patent No. 6,246,893. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the claims only differ in that the application uses the phrase "reflective interior surface" in place of the term "iris" throughout the claims. Thus, any method meeting the limitations of the patent would necessarily meet those of the application, as "reflective interior surface" is at least as broad as the term "iris".

The obviousness-type double patenting rejection is recited in addition to the statutory double patenting rejection above, as determination of the scope of the claim hinges on interpretation of the phrase "reflective interior surface" and the term "iris".
